FIFTH NEBRASKA REUNION

How the Members of the Old Soldiers Association Spent Yesterday.

PEARMAN CRITICISES THE GOVERNORS

Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year and Two Associations Merged Into One-Next Year's Reunion-Last Night's Camp Fire.

The fifth annual reunion of the Nebraska Soldiers' association was formally inaugurated at the Mercer hotel yesterday just as the clock struck 10. When the venerable chairman's gavel in the shape of a rugged fist moulded seventy-five years ago, struck the table, the grizzled Nebraska survivors of the struggle of the '60's un covered their heads and gave close attention A glance around the room revealed sixts-five in attendance. From each breast floated a rad ribbon, surmounted by the embiem of the eagle. Across the badges was the inscription "Fifth Annual Reunion of Nebraska Soldiers at Omaha, 1894."

President Bower occupied the chair. The club room of the hotel had been artistically decorated for the occasion, with the red, white and blue. The first order of business was the election of officers for the ensuing year. The ballot resulted in the following President, J. J. Shaw of Gage county, vice president, Chris Hartman of Omaha. secretary, John Q. Goss of Bellevue, color bearer, Barney Tunison of Gilmore.

A telegram of regret was read from Colonel Furnas who was unable to attend the reunion. The spirit was willing, but rheumatism was mightier than the spirit and he could not leave his bed. Major Pearman and Comrade Prehm were appointed a committee to draft resolutions of respect on the death of Mrs. Church Howe and Mrs. J. M. Thayer. The subject of consolidating the two or-ganizations of Nebraska veterans, which exist in this state at present, was discussed, and it was decided to only have one organization in the future. The Veterans society was merged into the Nebraska Soldiers association by this decision PLACE FOR THE NEXT REUNION.

The question of location for the next re-union came up for discussion. Major Pearman nominated Tecumseh. Comrade Abernathy of Johnson county heartily favored the choice, "but for the benefit of the Second Nebraska," he desired to state that there was a scarcity of saloous at Te-cumseh, but the people of that town would give each and all the old soldiers of Nebraska a hearty welcome and the best entertainment at their command. Major Pearman said that the tearcity of saloons at Tecumseh was im-material, as the boys could carry their "canteens" in their hip pockets.

Major Paddock offered a substitute to the original motion to the effect that the selection of the place for the next reunion be left to the discretion of the president and subject to his call. The substitute prevailed.

Among the oldest veterans who registered were: A. Bowen of Nebraska City, aged 73 years; George Armstrong of Omelia, 75 years; J. A. Paddock of Omaha, 60; John Q. Goss of Bellevue, 67; John Hahn of Papillion, 67; W. P. Snowden of Omaha, 68, and J. M. Stutted

John O. Goss was selected as toastmaster

Ex-Governor Thayer entered the room during the morning session and was greeted with an enthusiastic reception. Each old soldier arose to his feet and heartly applauded their old commander.

Major Paddock of the committee of arrangements and Chris Hartman of the finance committee reported that the old soldiers of Omaha had generously contributed to the success of the reunion by responses to a request for an entertainment

The association then considered the ques tion of a better system of records and data of value to the historian

Major Pearman then proceeded to pour hot shot into the governors of Nebraska past and present, for not appointing any of the old Nebraska soldiers as adjutant general. He stated that gubernatorial recogni-tion of the association should be made. The sentiments were received with evident ap Adjournment was then taken until 1:30 o'clock.

SOUVENIR OF WAR TIME. Comrade McMaken has retained his original call from R. R. Livingstone for one of the first companies of Nebraska volunteers. The paper upon which it is written is yellow from age, the ink faded, but the sentiment f patriotism is as fresh as upon its issuance. He was exhibiting it with great price yes

R. R. LIVINGSTONE.

Captain. Commanding P. V.
We, the undersigned, agree to serve as a volunteer military company of Plattsmouth. Resolved, That we, the undersigned, consider it expedient to form a military company at Plattsmouth and hereby sign an agreement to serve in the same.

One hundred names are subscribed, many of whose bearers are still members of the or-ganization. The population of Nebraska at that time, 1861, was 28,841, occupying a ter-ritory of 125,994 square miles. Nebraska furnished 3,307 men for the war, or about one-ninth of the entire population-about one-naif of the adult population.

The present association was organized Feb ruary 23, 1890, at Plattsmouth by Lieuten-ant McMaken, Major Pearman, Tom Majors, J. Q. Goss and others. It has a membership of 200 Nebraska survivors of the great strug-gle of the 60's. The first and second re-unions were held at Plattsmouth, the third at Lincoln and the fourth at Nebraska City. This, the fifth reunion, is the first one ever held in Omaha

CONCLUDED WITH A CAMPFIRE. The campfire at Germania hall last even ing was largely attended. The veterans marched from the Mercer hotel to the ball behind a military band. The patriotic funes which greeted their ears seemed to carry them back to the days when they enlisted for the defense of "Old Clory." Although racked vith rheumatic pains the flutter of the flag inspired them and they stepped Arriving at the hall, the comrades broke ranks and took possession. John Q. Goss presided. Upon the stage were seated ex-Governor Saunders, Major Pearman, High Private Hartman, Major Paddock, President Bowen, Lieutenant Governor Majors and Chairman Goss started the camp fire at 8 n'clock. He thanked the usterans for honor-ing him with the position of presiding offiand then yielded the floor to Dr. Bowen of Nebraska City the retiring president of the association. Dr. Bowen made a brief speech, in which he referred with evident pride to the fact that his grandfather fought at Bucker Hill and that he was reared on that good old principle, "a union of hearts, a union of hands and the flag of our country forever." Ex-Governor Saunders received an ova-tion when he stepped beeind the flag-draped areakers' stand and prepared to deliver his address. When the applicase had subsided the old war governor of Nebraska Territory complimented the veterans upon their comparatively youthful appearance. He drew from his pocket the original call for volunteers which he issued in May, 1861, while governor of Nebraska. The speaker said that he would take this as his text. After reading it to the old soldiers amid great enthuliasm, he reviewed the secres of early days which followed the issuance of the proclamation. He regretted that exthe proclamation. He regretted that exGovernor Thayer, the old eximander of the First Nebraska regiment, was not present.

The speaker then compared pioneer Nebraska with the commercial commonwealth of today. He thanked God that the war was won by the north and the shackles of slavery stricken from the wrists of oppressed negroes. He referred to the fact that the consus of 1830 showed that Nebraska had thirteen slaves. Had the result been victory for the south the citizens of Nebraska today would have been wrestling with the question of slavery as the system would doubtless have gained a strong foothold in this state had it not been crushed by the prompt response to the presistrong foothold in this state had it not been crushed by the prompt response to the presi-dent's proclamation and a grand chorus in that grand old song, "We Are Coming, Father Abraham, 300,000 Strong," In behalf of all appreciative critizens who paid homage Omain, the scene of their early collistment, and extended to them the freedom of the RESPONSE OF COMRADE MAJORS. Comrade Tom Majors of Peru responded to the address of welcome in behalf of the association. He paid a glowing tribute to Abraham Lincoln and the territorial gov-ernor, Hon. Alvin Saunders. He said that Lincoin made no mistake when he selected that grand old man to preside over the destinies of Debraska and act as the loyal representative of the federal government.

The speaker also praised Colonel John M. Thryer, William Baumer, Major Downs, Major Paddock and other officers of the old Nebraska regiments who led loyal citizens of the old territory to orave confederate bullets and dodge Indian tomahawks. He comdared the Omaha of today with the Omaha of '61 when the boys enlisted for the war. Comrade Majors said that God Almighty was the great captain that led the to brave soldiers he welcomed his bearers to boys in blue to victory.

Major Paddock spoke in a reminiscent mood and told a few stories about Canada Bill and Buffalo Bill. He was followed by President Shaw, who stated that he was proud of the fact that he carried a musket from July, 1861, to July, 1865. He then turned a few pages of history and concluded his remarks commending the bravery of his comrades as displayed in the days when courage was tested. Comrade Hartman made a few remarks in which he stated that he was a "raw recruit" at came fires of this kind.

The speaker then recited a few incidents of the days when he followed the stars and stripes and referred to an instance of Gen-eral Thayer's bravery on an Arkansas battle field when his horse was shot from under Major Pearman was called upon as a representative of the gallant Second, which was kept busychasing redskins while the First was in the south shoot-ing at the boys in butternut. His text was "Unwritten History." and he availed himself of a great opportunity to dim the laurels of all war historians. His remarks were frequently interrupted by laughter and applause and he clapped the climax of a series of witty stories, by a satirical thrust at Tom Majors. The speaker said that the old First regiment went south with 1,000 men when it returned to Nebraska several years after enlistment it had 998 in the ranks. The two missing men were Colonel Thayer who had been pro-moted to the rank of a brigadier and was on the lower Mississippi endeavor-ing to open that stream, while the second of the two absentees was Tom Majors, who was left at Little Rock trying to open a

The band then played "America" and the old soldiers rose to their feet and joined in the refrain. The campfire was then "extinguished," and the veterans marched to the Mercer hotel, where they were served with refreshments and fought the war over again until a late hour, when "taps" were sounded, and the fifth annual reunion was

SEEKING A WESTERN LOCATION. Omaha May Succeed in Getting a Sugar

Refinery Plant. The Chicago Sugar Refining company, Taylor and Beach streets, Chicago, is seeking a branch location, the suggestion of locations having been left to Luis Jackson, industrial commissioner for the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. Mr. Jack son on Wednesday sent letters to repre sentative organizations of eight western cities, and one to Secretary Drexel of the Commercial club of this city.

The letter is as follows:

The letter is as follows:

The Chicago Sugar Refinery company, Taylor and Beach streets, Chicago, which manufactures sugar specialties from corn and employs 600 men here, is seeking a location for a branch refinery near the corn supply where it would use about 30,000 bushels of corn per day and employ about 1,000 men.

The sugar company has in the newspapers just disclosed the fact that it is seeking a location. They intimated the matter to me about a month ago, but I was held to secrecy. I have already laid the merits of your city before them, but now that they have by publicity removed the ban of secrecy. I think it would be best for you to address them direct, and, on behalf of your citizens, invite them to visit your city to look the ground over. They expect some inducements. The location is to be either on the Mississippi or the Missouri river. As the thing is out, there will be great competition for the industry, as the matter has been given to all the railroads. W. W. King, the sugar company's traffic manager, has the matter of location in charge.

Mr. Lackson, Wednesday, in his office, in

Mr. Jackson, Wednesday, in his office in the Rand-Menally building, said to a BEE representative: "Omaha has an op-portunity which she should not allow to go by default. The location of the refinery at Omaha means an increase of 5,000 to the population, as well as a market for quite 10,000,000 bushels of grain per year. The Chicago Reflacry company is one of the oktest institutions engaged in the manufacture of glucose, starch, confectionery supplies drug uga a and other commodities in which corn is the leading element. The company s sound financially and would be a magnifi cent industry for any city to secure. Of course now that the matter has been made public there will undountedly be a lively scramble for the new enterprise, and Omaha should not be behind. What inducements the company will demand of course I do not know, that matter having been left entirely to Mr. King, the traffic manager of the company. The refinery people are not members of the trust, which is also an inducement, as they are not liable to be shut down when the market is overstocked," Here, some business men say, is Omaha's opportunity if it will realize it, and they think a committee should wait upon Mr. King at once to ascertain what inducements are expected

TROUBLE FOR MAJOR PADDOCK

Tonight He May Be No Longer a County Sugar cured No. 1 bacon for 10c. Commissioner.

TALK OF REDUCING HIM TO THE RANKS

Claim that His Removal to Omaha Has Left the Fourth Commissioner's District Without a Legal Representative-Case Set for Hearing,

There's a heap of trouble on Major Paddock's mind now, all caused by the fact that he is unable to figure out whether tonight he will be an official of Douglas county, or a private citizen.

The commissioner from Little Pappio district has consulted his oracle upon the subject, but what the result of the consultation was will not be made public until the major shows his hand. To say the least, he is not feeling joyful, although he making a desperate effort to drown his sorrow by plunging into the festivities of the soldier's reunion, which is now in progress.

Major Paddock has carved out his own lines and if they fall in spots where some parties predict, when the sun goes down tonight he will not be the represent ative of the voters of the Fourth commissioner district.

One year ago last November Major Joseph W. Paddock was elected as the member from the Fourth district, to serve for the full term of three years. At that time he resided out on the banks of the wild and raging little Pappio, in Douglas precinct. There he continued to live and till the soil by proxy until a couple of months ago, when he pulled up and moved into town, taking up his abode in the house Will Annin, his son-in-law, at Twenty-first and Leavenworth streets. This was in the first commissioner district, the destinies of which are looked after by E. M. Stenberg. the chairman of the board. Mr. Stenberg, raised no protest to the change of residence of the major, as he felt that the population of the city had been increased just that much, but there were some parties in South Omaha and in the country precincts of the Fourth district who objected to being left without a member o look after their roads, bridges and grades They opined that a county commissioner had no right to pose as being from the agricul-tural districts when as a matter of fact he was a resident of the city.

As time rolled along these complaints grew to be numerous and the matter was called to the attention of the appointive power, the county clerk, the county judge and the county treasurer. These gentlemen investigated and learned that the country home of Major Paddock had been abandoned and that he was a sure enough city gentle-man. With this information there was nothing left for them but to take steps to have the office declared vacant, that a successor might be appointed to serve out the unexpired term. These offi-cials consulted with lawyers and were informed that if Paddock had removed from his district a vacancy existed and that it was their duty to name his successor. No wanting to take any snap judgment upon the man from Douglas precinct, they decided to give him a hearing, and for that purpose they have subpoenedd witnesses, who will appear this afternoon and give testimony.

The investigation will be conducted by County Attorney Kaley in behalf of the county and will be public.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"Spider and Fly," the popular and remarkably successful spectacular production, will be presented at Boyd's theater for four nights ommencing with a matinee on next Sunday afternoon. The "Spider and Fly" can certainly be clased as a distinct novelty, containing, as it does, the brightest features of spectacle, pantomime comedy and high class vaudevile. The costumes have been lavishly supplied, the scenery, electric mechanical ef-fects are all new and said to be magnificent. The company numbers fifty people and were ostly recruited abroad, though the several American artists who were prominent in last scason's cast have been re-engaged. The chorus will be unusually attractive; numerous novelties have been added and the music songs and specialties are all new. DIVORCE SCANDAL PROMISED

Something of a Sensation Unfolded by a Plaintiff's Petition.

MRS. M'GUCKIN'S TALE OF MARITAL WOE

Lived with Her Supposed Husband Twelve Years Only to Be Kicked Out in the Cold and Her Children Disowned and Dishonored.

The trouble of the McGuckin family have been giving another airing in the district court, where Anna McGuckin, the plaintiff and the alleged wife of Daniel, the defendant, has filed her reply to the answer. which was a general denial of all of the material allegations in the petition.

Among the sensational cases, which will be called for trial during the February term of the district court, which convenes next week, the McGuckin case will stand as the leading attraction, and when once on the scandal mongers will have a sweet mor-sel to roll under thheir tongues. None of the parties are swells in society, but there is money, and lots of it, which in a measure furnishes assurance that it will be a fight to a finish, as the plaintiff has asked to have what she terms a marriage-atlaw declared a legal union, that she may come in and claim a share of the McGuckin wealth, which consists of a hotel in South Omaha, some choice corner lots in this city and a fair-sized bank account. MRS. M'GUCKIN'S STORY.

The story told by the plaintiff in her petition, which is now on file in the office of Clerk Moores, is to the effect that in January, 1880, she was a cook in the employ Major Stanton at Fort Omaha. At th time, though she was but 23 years of age the was a wife, though she did not partic pate in the luxury of enjoying marital re-lations, simply for the reason that her hus-band was cruel and was according to her testimony, a brute in human form. This husband was a nonresident having his abode down in the state of New Jersey, where he worked and earned money which was spent in having a good time and in maintaining himself.

During the time when the plaintiff was erforming the offices of cook in the kitchen of Major Stanton, she avers that she met Daniel L. McGuckin, who was the owner of a saloon at the corner of Eleventh and Harney streets in this city. This meeting was agreeable enough and several others followed in rapid succession. As time rolled along, she avers that Daniel requested her to throw up her cooking job and live with him as a wife. This offer or proposition she indignantly spurned, and then for the first time told Daniel that she was a married woman and that she had a husband living omewhere on the face of the earth withstanding the furnishing of this information. Daniel pressed his suit, intimating that if they could not live together as husband and wife, they could live together as friends. Spurning this proposition, like a similar one which had been made upon a former occasion, the woman, so she alleges removed to Burt county, where for a tim she resided with a brother at Oakland. MARRIED WITHOUT FORMALITY.

After having been in the quiet of the li tie town for a few days, Daniel appeared upon the scene with a proposition to marry. This was looked upon with favor, and at once the plaintiff instituted divorce pro-ceedings from her husband. The case was heard, and at the May term of the district court, in and for Burt county held in 1880, the decree was granted, leaving Anna to take her choice of wedding again or living single. The next time that she met Daniel she told him that she was ready to try matrimony once more. Wedding rings and wedding gowns were secured, and all ar-rangements made for the union of hearts and hands, but as the time for the event drew nigh, Daniel intimated that the per-formance of the ceremony was but a matter of form and that it was not one of the necessities. Being ignorant of the ways of a wicked world, the plaintiff consented and was duly installed as the housekeeper of Los Angeles, San Diego, etc., is only $465.50. City ticket office, 1324 Farnam until the summer of 1892, when she was turned out into the cold, notwithstanding the fact that for twelve years she had been in-troduced and had been known to the world as "Mrs. McGuckin." During the time that she was living with Daniel she alleges that there were born to her five children, all of which bear the name of McGuckin, and of all of which Daniel is the father. Some time ago the plaintiff brought suit in the district court, asking that an order be > ssued declesing the living together as a marriage at law and that she be entitled to a share of the property, most of which she had assisted in accumulating. WHAT DANIEL REPLIED. To the petition McGuckin filed an answer admitting the living together, but denying all of the other material facts. In that con-dition the suit rested until yesterday, when the plaintiff filed her reply, in which she al-leges that she went to live with the deher his wife. These promises, she avers he continued to make until she learned that he was leading a double life, having another wife from whom he was not legally diverced. The divorce, she alleges was afterwards se-cure d and they would have lived happily together, had the church of which Daniel > fendant under a promise that he would make was a member not interfered and raised a row. To make this point clear to the court the plaintiff avers that she is a Swede and a member of the Lutheran church, while Daniel is an Irishman and a member of the Catholic church. Now, however, she declares that if the court will affirm the marriage will allow Daniel to go his way and she will try to get along without him.

NEW BOARD OF HEALTH.

Councilman Bruner Figuring On Having a Long Finger in the Pie. Dr. J. J. Saville took his place in ex-Health

Commissioner Somer's chair yesterday, and will devote the remainder of the week to familiarizing himself with the routine work of the office. The next meeting of the Board of Health will be held Monday, and that body will then be made up, as it will remain for the next year, of the following members: Mayor Bemis, Health Commissioner Saville, Chief of Police Seavey Plumbing Inspector Duncan and Councilme Bruner and McAndrews.

Several inspectorships will have to be filled, among them those of milk inspector meat inspector, inspector of contagious diseasesand sanitary inspector. The present incumbents would all like to hold on, but it is known in advance that Councilman Bruner proposes to displace Milk Inspector Holmes, and instal his brother, John Bruner, in that place. This has been one of the purposes of the Eighth ward councilman for some time, and it was one of the reasons that led him to demand the chair-manship of the council committee on sewer-age, as that made him a member of the board. Not satisfied with that, he went board. Not satisfied with that, he went into the democratic caucus by proxy to secure the confirmation of Saville and Dun-can as other members of the board, in order to get sufficient leverage to carry his point, and is seemingly satisfied that he will have ample backing when he hurls the tomahawk in Inspector Holmes' direction Monday after-noon.
